

Migrant Children Must Be Protected

The different kinds of violence and poverty that are prevalent in our countries obligate thousands of people to flee, migrating in an irregular way going north. Illegitimate and corrupt governments of the region aggravate the situation, insofar as they do not seriously invest in resolving the root causes of forced migration, and as the political crises intensify, the lack of hope of the population also grows. On the other hand, “Zero Tolerance” policies on irregular migration by the United States government leaves people without options.

In the United States, Mexico and Central America, there continues to be a predominant focus on National Security to address irregular migration, with the consistent practices of militarization of public policies, territories and borders, with the consistent practices of control, detention and deportation of migrants, prioritized before the focus of Human Safety, with respectful and promising human rights practices. The governments of origin themselves- Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and Mexico reinforce border security, when they are the ones who have not protected their citizens in their territories.

So far this year, the news gives account of central americans who have died under the control of Border Patrol mostly children and others, crossing rivers, the desert and confronting other risks along the route. In the case of Guatemalans, the majority of those who died were indigenous children, which reflects the racism and marginalization of those that are placed in this system.

The crimes committed by Border Patrol, like the assasination of Claudia Patricia Gomez, like the death of girls in the last eight months, detained boys are left in impunity.

These deaths are not of importance to the governments of Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Mexico, and the United states; on the contrary, they continue taking measures that prevent people from accessing the right to seek international protection when they are threatened. In addition, they criminalize families that migrate with their children which contradicts the legal framework of child protection.

The Guatemalan government has hurried to sign an agreement to convert itself into a “Safe Third Country” without following the procedures that correspond and contravene international agreements, without having the conditions to offer security to people seeking international protection. The other countries of the region find themselves in negotiations with the U.S. government to sign migratory agreements whose content is unknown.

On their part, in the U.S. territory, they are making the biggest raids of the last decade against migrant workers, like the ones carried out in Mississippi, causing fear in migrant communities.

While all migrating people, find themselves in a vulnerable situation, it is greater for children, with the aggravating factor if they are indigenous or extra-continental. They are subject to deprivation of liberty in detention centers, vulnerable to inhuman treatment, cruel degrading to sexual abuse and death within them.

This is why the organizations that subscribe to this pronouncement reaffirm the internationally accepted principles of:

- Prioritizing the best interest of children and their right to protection
- The non-separation of families. Not separating families.
- No detention of Children
- Compliance with non-refoulement and international protection (Refugee and Asylum)
- Compliance with due process to address each case and differential care
- The right to Justice, so that crimes do not remain in impunity.

Therefore, we request that you act to:

-To void the agreements that the states have signed, violating human rights in a hidden way and behind the backs of the peoples. Particularly, that the "Safe Third Country" Agreement with the Guatemalan government be annulled. It is illegal, illegitimate, unfeasible, and contrary to human rights.

-That a budget oriented towards the construction of walls and greater repression against migrants is not approved in the next fiscal year for the United States. On the contrary, the construction of walls and greater repression against migrants. On the contrary, the budget is supported when attacking the causes that motivate migration and that cooperation is not directed by the government but through community authorities and civil society organizations; that [the budget] is oriented to combat corruption through social auditing , citizen participation, as well as investment programs in developments in the most impoverished territories.

-That dignified conditions be guaranteed for children and that they are taken care of under the rights approach, taking into account cultural diversity and differential attention, in countries of origin/return transit and destination.

-To support and contribute to the establishment of effective child protection systems in the United States and in turn to countries of origin/ return, transit, and destination, which contribute to eliminating homicides and violence against children and adolescents in Central America, so they don't have to migrate forcefully.
